Scope and Contents

The collection consists of the personal and business papers of William Turner Catledge (1901-1983), graduate of Mississippi A&M College, journalist, and editor of The New York Times. Catledge was reared in Neshoba County, Mississippi, and worked for several Mississippi newspapers, the Memphis Commercial Appeal, and the Baltimore Sun before beginning his distinguished career with The New York Times in 1929. The bulk of the files date from 1945 to 1968, the period during which Catledge served as assistant managing editor, executive managing editor, managing editor, and executive editor of the Times. Included are correspondence, memoranda, clippings, reports, photographs, tapes, phonograph records, memorabilia, and publications. The collection is divided into two series:

- 1 - papers transferred to MSU from the Catledge home in New Orleans, mostly personal and dated after Catledge's retirement from The Times, 1873-1985, and includes some miscellaneous items donated by other people (circa 20 cubic feet), and
- 2 - office files transferred to MSU from the New York Times office in New York, 1922-1970 (circa 112 cubic feet).

Biographical Information

1974 biography:

Since he eased into the profession at 14 and eased out at 69, Turner Catledge can be said to have been a newspaperman for over half a century, most of it with The New York Times. He served that newspaper as a reporter, a Washington correspondent, national correspondent, assistant managing editor, executive managing editor, managing editor and as its first executive editor. When he resigned as a vice president in January, 1970, although continuing as a member of the board of directors until April, 1973, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The Times, paid this tribute to him: "Turner Catledge's name is written large in the history of The New York Times. He has served the paper with distinction for over 40 years and during most of that time, as managing editor and executive editor, has guided the news departments to new heights of achievement. He leaves us a tradition of superlative performance."

Mr. Catledge was born on March 17, 1901, in Ackerman, Mississippi, and grew up in Philadelphia, Mississippi. He started newspaper work at 14, setting type for the weekly Neshoba Democrat. After being graduated from Mississippi State College in 1922, he became editor of The Tunica Times and then managing editor and mechanical superintendent of The Tupelo Journal. On both newspapers he campaigned against the then strong Ku Klux Klan.

He first began to attract more than local notice as a newspaperman of unusual abilities in 1924, when he became a reporter on the Memphis Commercial Appeal. He joined the staff of The Baltimore Sun in June, 1927, and remained there until he came to The New York Times in July, 1929.

He was employed by The Times as a direct result of a letter sent to Adolph S. Ochs, then publisher of The Times, by Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, who had observed Mr. Catledge's work in covering the 1927 Mississippi floods. Mr. Catledge was on the local staff of The Times for five months before being transferred to the Washington bureau. He remained in the bureau in various capacities, including those of Capitol correspondent and White House correspondent, until 1936, when he became The Times chief news correspondent. In this post, he covered all phases of government, political and national life, and traveled in virtually every state of the union.

In December, 1941, Mr. Catledge moved to The Chicago Sun, where he was successively its roving correspondent and editor-in-chief.

He returned to The New York Times in May, 1943, as the newspaper's national correspondent, with headquarters in Washington. That same year he went to the European battlefronts and covered the activities of the American Red Cross for The Times. In November, 1944, he accompanied the late publisher of The Times, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, on a long tour of the South Pacific. Since that time, he has traveled extensively in Europe, including Russia, and other parts of the world.

Mr. Catledge became assistant managing editor of The Times in January, 1945; executive managing editor in January, 1951; and managing editor in December, 1951. He was executive editor of The Times from September, 1964, until June, 1968, when he became a vice president.

In May 1957, he scored a world reporting exclusive, an interview with Russian Premier Nikita S. Krushchev in which the Premier urged a summit meeting of great-power leaders.

Mr. Catledge has been a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors since 1951, was elected to its board of directors in 1954 and served as president in 1960-61. He was also a member of the Pulitzer Prizes Advisory Board; American Press Institute Advisory Board; Associated Press Managing Editors Association; and is a Fellow of Sigma Delta Chi. He has served on the board of trustees of Sarah Lawrence College, and since 1970 has been a member of the Board of Visitors of Tulane University.

Mr. Catledge holds honorary degrees from Washington and Lee, Southwestern at Memphis, the University of Kentucky and Tulane University. His clubs are the National Press and Gridiron of Washington, and the Boston Club and New Orleans Country Club in New Orleans. He also is a member of International House, New Orleans.

Mr. Catledge in April, 1968, received the first Carr V. Van Anda Award of the Ohio University School of Journalism, named for the managing editor of The Times who served from 1904 to 1932. The citation said Mr. Catledge had been "an innovator in news coverage and adherent to the finest standards of excellence in journalism," and had devised "new formats and new approaches to the news and the public need for knowledge."

He is the author, with Joseph W. Alsop, Jr., of "The 168 Days," published in 1937, a study of President Roosevelt's unsuccessful effort to expand the Supreme Court; also "My Life and The Times," published in 1971, a volume of memoirs of his career.

Mr. Catledge is now a resident of New Orleans, which he made his home city upon his retirement in 1970. He is a frequent lecturer and speaker on journalism and public affairs at schools, colleges and before civic groups, and associates himself with community affairs in his home city. Since his retirement, his activities have included:

Visiting professor, Journalism and Political Science, Mississippi State University for the years 1971 through 1974;

Visiting Lecturer, Journalism and Public Affairs, University of Arizona, 1971;

Visiting Meeman Professor of Journalism, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, 1971-72;

Chairman, Board of Trustees, New Orleans Foundation for Educational Television, 1973-

SERIES I

Introduction

Series I of the Turner Catledge papers consists of records donated directly to Mississippi State University by Mr. or Mrs. Catledge from 1975 to Mrs. Catledge's death in 2008.

Included are biographical sketches; clippings; correspondence; manuscripts of articles, speeches, and the autobiography My Life and the Times; memorabilia; oral history interviews; phonograph records; photographs; publications; research material; and tapes. The inclusive dates are 1878 to 1983, but much of the series, especially the clippings, correspondence, and manuscripts, fall during the years from 1970 to 1983.

The main topics, in addition to biographical data, are The New York Times and journalism. Among items of particular interest are Catledge's reminiscences of his 1944 "Visit to the Pacific" war zone with The New York Times publisher Arthur Hays Sulzberger, his correspondence with fellow journalists, the oral history interview conducted with him by The New York Times Company, the phonograph recordings of his famous imitation of Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, and the drafts of his autobiography, which contain many details that were not included in the published version.

The basic arrangement of the series is by document type.

Abby Ray Catledge, Turner Catledge's widow, died October 15, 2008, at the age of 91, leaving to Mississippi State University Libraries the remainder of the materials from the Turner Catledge office in the New Orleans home where the Catledges lived after his retirement from The Times in 1970. Among the photographs from the Catledge office are signed photographs of presidents from Hoover to Nixon, including the well-known photo of Catledge and Kennedy made at the time of the Bay of Pigs invasion, photographs of dignitaries such as Associate Justice Hugo Black and Chief Justice Warren Burger, photographs of the Catledges with their friends and Times publisher Arthur Ochs "Punch" Sulzberger and wife, photographs of Abby Catledge during her life with Turner in New York, voluminous photographs from the Catledge's travels, and family photographs.

SERIES II

Introduction

Series II consists of Turner Catledge's files from his New York Times office during his service as assistant managing editor (1945-1951), executive managing editor (1951), managing editor (1951-1964), and executive editor (1964-1968). The files contain correspondence, memoranda, clippings, reports, and other papers documenting the operation of The Times during Catledge's tenure. Personal papers are also included. Inclusive dates for the series are 1922-1970, but few items predate 1945.

The series, which originally consisted of one sequence of files, has been divided into four sections for processing reasons. The divisions were not made along clear chronological or topical lines; consequently, the researcher should consult the whole finding aid to the series. Part of the series was processed by Mississippi State University; the rest was processed by the New York Times Archives. With the exception of Series II. B and E, the series has been microfilmed.

Mississippi State University holds both the originals and the microfilm. The New York Times holds the microfilm, as well as the originals of selected "autograph" letters in Series II. C/D. Photocopies of these items have been substituted in the files and are clearly marked.

The following outline describes the arrangement of the series.

Series II. A: 1945-1960. 57 cubic feet.

Consists primarily of business files arranged alphabetically within chronological divisions. The original filing system was maintained as closely as possible.
Originals and microfilm.

Processed by Mississippi State University.

Series II. B: 1939-1970. 8 cubic feet.

Includes papers primarily concerning organizations or personal matters. Originals only. Separated from the items in Series II. C/D by the New York Times Archives, which decided not to microfilm them.

Series II. C: 1944-1970. 9 cubic feet.

Consists of folders with personal names as titles, arranged alphabetically.
Originals and microfilm.
Processed by the New York Times Archives.

Series II. D: 1922-1970. 25 cubic feet.

Consists of folders with subjects as titles, arranged alphabetically. Originals and microfilm.
Processed by the New York Times Archives.

Series II. E: 1945-1970. 13 cubic feet.

Consists of cross reference sheets removed from the preceding parts of the series and arranged in one alphabetical sequence. Many of the sheets refer to folders that no longer exist or to items that have been moved to different folders. This subseries is of limited value because so many of its references are incorrect; however, it does provide some clues to items included in the collection. Originals only.

Processed by Mississippi State University.

SERIES II. A

Introduction

The Turner Catledge papers, Series II. A, consist of Catledge's office files from 1945 to 1960, beginning with his appointment as assistant to the managing editor of the New York Times and continuing after he was named managing editor in 1951.

This group of papers has been processed by Mississippi State University, which holds both the original papers and the microfilmed papers. A second copy of the microfilm is held by the New York Times Archives.

The original filing system has been maintained, with minor modifications to improve consistency. The folders are arranged alphabetically within each of the following chronological divisions: 1945-1950, 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959, 1960.

Within each folder, the items are in chronological order with one basic exception: items that were originally attached have been numbered and kept together, with the date on the top page used to determine the position in the folder. One other minor exception is the folders entitled "Applications," in which the items are arranged in alphabetical order according to the name of the applicant.

The finding aid to this series is divided into three sections. Section 1 is the folder list, which reflects the order in which the collection was filmed and is stored. Horizontal lines mark the divisions between the microfilm reels (R). An asterisk preceding the reel number indicates that the underlined folder is split between that reel and the next one.

The indexes to personal names and subjects, which make up Sections 2 and 3 respectively, guide the user to pertinent folder titles in Section 1. The indexes are based solely on information included in the folder titles and do not refer to items within the folders.

Section 1. Folder List

Section 2. Folder Index: Personal Names

This index includes the personal names that appear in the folder titles in Section 1 and should be used in conjunction with that list. The names are listed alphabetically; within each entry the order is chronological. If the surname is the first word in a folder title, only the year in which it appears is listed here. (The user should consult the appropriate year in Section 1 to find the complete folder titles for each name.) If the folder title in which the name appears begins with a word other than the surname, this index lists both the year and the complete folder title.

Section 3. Folder Index: Subjects

This index includes the subjects that appear in the folder titles in Section 1 and should be used in conjunction with that list. Appropriate geographical names and cross references have been added.

The subjects are listed alphabetically in the first column. The second column consists of the years in which the subjects appear and the cross references. If the folder title corresponds exactly to the subject entry, no information beyond the year is given. If the subject and folder title vary in any way, the complete folder title is listed in parentheses following the year in which it appears.

Series II. C and D

Processed by Charles G. St. Vil, The New York Times Archives, July 1985

Introduction

The Turner Catledge papers are a rich source of information on the news operation of The New York Times in the 1950's and 1960's. But to someone interested in the life story, personality and character of Turner Catledge these papers are a treasure-trove. The collection contains a wealth of anecdotal material through which one can trace Mr. Catledge's journalistic career from his first job as a typesetter in a small Mississippi weekly, The Neshoba Democrat, to the exalted position of Executive Editor of one of America's most renowned newspapers, The New York Times. In a reminiscent note for a special edition of The Neshoba Democrat, for example, Turner Catledge describes with a good deal of detail his early life in his home town of Philadelphia, Mississippi. A letter to a high school student tells about his interest in the newspaper business. "A special reason," the letter says, "that moved me to enter the field of journalism was a liking for a printing office in that small town in Mississippi. Every other reason grew out of that. I liked to express myself and see my expression in print." To a Times reader Mr. Catledge writes: "My main satisfactions in my journalistic career have been to have a front seat at the arena of history to tell the world what I have seen and heard."

Mr. Catledge worked as a reporter for the Commercial Appeal in Memphis and the Baltimore Sun before he joined The New York Times in 1929. Since then, his whole life seems to have been marvelously attuned to The Times. "My career," he writes to the Publisher, "has been every bit as rewarding as (President) Herbert Hoover predicted, as Mr. Birchall promised and as you fulfilled." (Mr. Hoover had recommended Catledge to the The Times and Mr. Birchall was Acting Managing Editor then.) About a 17-month period spent with the Chicago Sun in 1941 and 1942 Mr. Catledge said: "I do not recommend you try it, but such an interruption makes one love The Times all the more."

For more than two decades Mr. Catledge guided the news operation of The New York Times. Through his leadership both at the newspaper and within the professional bodies of journalism he helped formulate and refine many of the modern approaches to news gathering and news editing. His views and advice were sought by friends and colleagues throughout the newspaper industry. He received innumerable honors from every corner of his profession. He was undoubtedly, as one of his associates at The Times put it, "the most popular newspaper editor of his generation in America."

Organization and Contents of the Collection

The Turner Catledge papers are divided into two main sections. The first section, covering the period from 1945 to 1960 and centering on Mr. Catledge's years as Assistant Managing Editor and then Managing Editor of The New York Times, was processed and microfilmed by Mississippi State University, Mr. Catledge's alma mater. The original order of the papers and the original folder titles have been retained with only minor modifications. Within each chronological division the folders are arranged alphabetically. A register of folders, or guide, was prepared by the University.

The second section was processed and microfilmed by the Archives of The New York Times, which produced the present guide. This section relates mainly to the period from 1961 to 1969 and focuses on Mr. Catledge's direction of the news operation of The New York Times as Executive Editor. It consists of approximately 37 cubic feet of correspondence, notes, memoranda, news clippings and speeches, which have been sorted into two main series: A Biographical File and a Subject File. Numerous cross-references provide access to both series. In many cases the original titles of the folders have been changed to more appropriately reflect the contents.

One should note that there is no clear demarcation between the two sections of the collection; quite a few folders in the second section do contain correspondence dating back to the 1940's and 1950's. Because of this overlap and also because of the different arrangement in the two sections, the guides to both should be consulted for reference.

The Biographical File - (1961-1969 Section)

The Biographical File consists of Mr. Catledge's correspondence with members of the staff of The New York Times, his correspondence with friends, business acquaintances and others, and his correspondence with members of his family. The titles of the folders are personal names and are listed in straight alphabetical order. Of special interest are the folders dealing with the publishers of The New York Times, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Orvil E. Dryfoos and Arthur Ochs Sulzberger. They contain mostly comments, criticism and suggestions about news stories, but in the aggregate they reveal, particularly in the case of Arthur Hays Sulzberger, the working relationship between the Publisher and the Managing Editor.

As a national news correspondent for The Times and as a top news executive, Turner Catledge got to know intimately many of the American and foreign leaders. The Biographical File contains correspondence with such personalities as John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard Nixon, Nikita Khrushchev, etc. Mr. Catledge's exclusive interview with Khrushchev in 1957 was considered a great journalistic coup.

The Subject File - (1961-1969 Section)

The folders listed in the Subject File pertain to a wide variety of matters. The series on the News Department of The New York Times runs the whole gamut of subdivisions such as City Desk (later called Metropolitan Desk), National Desk, Foreign Desk, and the specialized areas such as Cultural News, Financial News, Sport News, Women's News, etc. The extensive file on the various professional organizations of journalism reveal Mr. Catledge's very active role in the newspaper industry. He was on the original Advisory Board and Executive Committee of the American Press Institute. In 1960 he became president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. For many years he was on the Advisory Board of the Pulitzer Prize Committee.

As for Mr. Catledge's speeches, the great number of them alone is evidence of the high status he enjoyed within the profession of journalism. His major themes were: Responsible Journalism, Objectivity in the News, Man's Right and Need to Know, Freedom of the Press, Role of the Press in American Democracy, etc.

A series of folders with the title Miscellaneous Correspondence contain letters with no connection to any of the subject headings in the collection. These letters are generally of ephemeral nature. Many of them are from executives of other newspapers seeking Mr. Catledge's advice or views, or sometimes simply a personal favor. But here, again, the great number of them is evidence of Mr. Catledge's high standing among his colleagues in the newspaper industry.

The papers concerning family, home, health and personal finances have been grouped under the title Personal and Private Papers. There are cross references from this title to the names of family members in the Biographical File, where related material may be found.
